Chapter 3: From Dog Days to Horse Warriors

Section 2, “Woodland Tribes Move to the Plains” (P.46-52)

As You Read:

1. Where did the ancestors of the Crow live before moving to Montana and Wyoming?

2. Who were the Métis?

3. As tribes moved to the dry western plains, what did they become? What did they eat and what did they live in?

4. What time of year was a time for story-telling about Native history and life?

5. Though Plains tribes had many cultural similarities, they also differed in some ways. For instance, societies were structured differently from tribe to tribe. List at least two other differences between tribes that are listed in the text.

6. How were hunter-gatherer tribes organized?

7. How were sedentary tribes organized?

8. Why did trade networks strengthen ties between tribes?
